Ryan Norman from DGR Engineering was here to discuss the process of building a Water Treatment Plant. The first step is the City needs to conduct a 90 day pilot study that is required by the DNR, this will also help to determine what kind of plant the City should construct. A new deep well will also need to be drilled, this will be a priority in the process. Determining the location is the most important aspect, Ryan and the City will look further into where this will be best suitable for our needs.
